

Ly Family

From the Killing Fields to the Missions Field

We always thank God for all of you and continually mention you in our prayers. We remember before our God and Father your work produced by faith, your labor prompted by love, and your endurance inspired by hope in our Lord Jesus Christ (1 Thess 1:2-3, NLT).

Women are Blessed Conference

Dear Friends,

It was a beautiful and unforgettable sight—over 300 women gathered in the new church we had just completed. They came from across Cambodia to celebrate God's goodness, encourage one another, and be challenged to proclaim the gospel to their families, friends, and neighbors.

Thida and I were honored to share God's Word with these precious ladies. Many had traveled all day to attend, and some slept on the church floor so they wouldn't miss a moment. Our message to them was this: they are blessed—not because life is easy or abundant, but because God has chosen them and called them His daughters. In the midst of hardship and daily struggles, we urged them to rise and become destiny changers.

We were moved as they joined hands, wept before the Lord, and cried out for their husbands, children, and loved ones. We believe it will be through the faithful prayers and witness of these women that the kingdom of Cambodia will one day become His Kingdom.

Amid Fighting, Faith Arises

Praise and Prayer

- ❖ In our last newsletter, we asked for prayers for the Assemblies of God of Cambodia's 35th Anniversary. The event was a powerful time of reflection and rejoicing over all that God has done — from no known believers to now tens of thousands, and more than 200 churches established across the country. Yet, while we celebrate, we remain deeply aware of the work still ahead. Cambodia continues to be a Buddhist nation, and the vast majority have yet to hear the gospel of Jesus Christ. Please continue to pray with us — that the Holy Spirit would be poured out afresh on the Church in Cambodia, empowering her to rise boldly and carry the good news to those who have never heard. Pray that this generation of Cambodian believers would take up the mantle to reach the never-reached, proclaiming the name of Jesus with courage, love, and power.

Once again, the sound of war echoed across the jungle and open rice fields as fighting erupted between Cambodia and Thailand over a disputed border. For many Cambodians, the thunder of artillery and the shock of exploding bombs awakened buried memories, reviving the fear and trauma of a war-scarred past. Families living near the border fled their homes, seeking safety wherever they could. Mothers hold their children tightly, while the elderly struggle to keep pace. The uncertainty of whether they would ever return stirred deep anxiety—a painful reminder that peace in this land remains fragile and easily shattered.

In the midst of fighting and fear, the believers from one of our churches made the courageous choice to trust God. While many fled, they stayed behind to help and care for those who could not escape. Though they didn't have much, they served with compassion and faith. They offered food, water, and comforting words of prayer, reminding the weary and afraid that they were not forgotten by God or His people.
